Memorandum relative to the origin of the Union Flag in its present form*

UNION FLAG.

The original National Flag of England was the Banner of St. George (argent, a cross gules). To this the Banner of St. Andrew (azure, a saltire argent) was united, in pursuance of a Royal Proclamation, dated 12th April, 1606, of which the following is an extract :—

“ Whereas some difference hath arisen between Our Subjects of South and North Britain, travelling by seas, about the bearing of their flags : for the avoiding of all such contentions hereafter, We have, with the advice of Our Council, ordered that from henceforth, all Our subjects of this Isle and Kingdom of Great Britain, and the members thereof, shall bear in their maintops the Red Cross, commonly called Saint George's Cross, and the White Cross, commonly called Saint Andrew's Cross, joined together, according to a form made by Our Heralds, and sent by us to Our Admiral, to be published to Our said subjects : and in their foretops Our subjects of South Britain shall wear the Red Cross only, as they were wont : and Our subjects of North Britain in their foretops the White Cross only, as they were accustomed.”

UNION WITH SCOTLAND.

On the 17th March, 1706–7, the Lords of the Committee of the Privy Council ordered the Kings of Arms and the Heralds to consider of the alterations to be made in the Ensigns Armorial, and the conjoining the Crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, to be used in all Flags, Banners, Standards and Ensigns at sea and on land.

On the 17th April, 1707, the Queen in Council, upon a report from the Lords of the Privy Council, pursuant to the Act for uniting the two Kingdoms, approved of the Flag, as shown in the following drawing marked A, in which the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew are conjoined.

UNION WITH IRELAND.

On the 5th November, 1800, the King in Council approved the report of a Committee of the Privy Council, that the Union Flag

* NOTE.—A Jack is a Flag to be flown only on the “ Jack ” staff, i.e., a staff on the bowsprit or forepart of the Ship. The word “ Jack ” is probably a diminutive, distinguishing the small Union Flag on the bowsprit from the large one formerly flown at the topmast head.

should be altered as shown in the following drawing marked B, in which the Cross of St. George is conjoined with the Crosses of St. Andrew and St. Patrick, and which is thus described in the proclamation issued on the 1st January, 1801 :—

“ The Union Flag shall be azure, the Crosses saltires of St. Andrew and St. Patrick, quarterly per saltire counter-changed argent and gules ; the latter fimbriated of the second surmounted by the Cross of St. George of the third fimbriated as the saltire.”

On the drawing marked C, which shows the formation of the Union Flag, turn the Cross of St. George upwards, and that of St. Patrick downwards, the banner of St. Andrew will then be uncovered ; place on this the Cross of St. George, and we have the National Flag of 1606 ; turn back the St. George, then place the Cross of St. Patrick on the blue field of the St. Andrew's banner (counterchanging the white of the Cross of St. Andrew with the red of that of St. Patrick), place the Cross of St. George over all, and we have the Union Flag of 1801, and of the present time.

Memorandum as to Red, White, and Blue Ensigns

In 1687, an inquiry was made by Mr. Pepys, Secretary to the Admiralty, as to the Flags worn in the reign of Charles I ; and in a manuscript in the British Museum, it is stated that in the Duke of Buckingham's expedition to the Isle of Rhé, in 1627, the fleet was divided into the Red, Blue, and White Squadrons. The following is an extract from that manuscript :—

“ The Duke, now lying at Portsmouth, divided his Fleete into Squadrons. Himselfe Admirall and Generall in Chiefe went in y^e Triumph bearing the Standard of England in y^e maine topp, and Admirall particular of the bloody colours.

“ The Earle of Lindsey was Vice-Admirall to the Fleete in the Rainbowe, bearing the King's usual colours in his fore topp, and a Blew Flag in his maine topp, and was Admirall of the blew colours.

“ The Lord Harvey was Rear Admirall in y^e Repulse, bearing the King's usual colours in his mizen and a White Flag in the maine topp, and was Admirall of y^e Squadron of white colours.”

There were two other Squadrons, one under the Earl of Danby with the St. George's Flag, the other under Captain Pennington (made Admiral of his Squadron), with the St. Andrew's Cross.

It will be observed that in this instance the blue Flag took precedence of the white.

In 1665, in the large Fleet commanded by the Duke of York in person, as Lord High Admiral, Prince Rupert was Admiral of the white Squadron, and Sir Thomas Allen of the blue ; and an old drawing shows the Three Divisions of the Fleet wearing Ensigns of their respective colours.

But, although the large Fleets were thus divided, Admirals on Foreign Stations continued to wear the Union Flag at the main, fore, or mizen, according to their rank as Full, Vice, or Rear-Admiral.

Many instances are mentioned of the inconvenience arising from the use of the Royal Flag by private ships, and in 1660, the Duke of York gave an order that the Union Flag should be worn only by the King's ships.

It is clear that the sole object for which the three colours were formerly used was to distinguish the divisions of the Fleet, which often numbered as many as 200 sail.

A variety of Ensigns much increases the danger of confusion in action, and it may be observed that, in order to prevent that confusion, Lord Nelson, on going into action at "Trafalgar," ordered the whole of his fleet to hoist the white ensign; and it was under that flag, the "Old Banner of England," but with the Union in the upper corner, that the victory was gained.

Latterly, owing to the comparatively small number of ships forming a fleet, the distinctive colours became of much less importance, while the frequent change of flags on foreign stations was very puzzling to foreigners, often led to mistakes, and in many ways was inconvenient; accordingly, on the 9th of July, 1864, by Her Majesty's Order in Council of that date, it was directed that the classification of ships under the denominations of Red, White, and Blue Squadrons should be discontinued, and that in future the "White" ensign should be used by all of Her Majesty's ships of war in commission; the Blue ensign by British merchant ships commanded by officers of the Royal Naval Reserve, after obtaining permission from the Admiralty; and the Red ensign by all other ships and vessels belonging to Her Majesty's subjects.

65. Distinguishing Flags in India.—The following rules are established by the Government of India in respect to the hoisting of the Viceroy's flag in Indian waters :—

- (a) When the Viceroy and Governor-General is on board, the Viceroy's flag is to be hoisted at the main.
- (b) When a Governor or Lieutenant-Governor is on board, within the limits of his Government, or on duty elsewhere in territories under the authority of the Government of India, the Viceroy's flag is to be hoisted at the fore.
- (c) When a Chief Commissioner or Political Officer is on board, within the limits of his jurisdiction, or on duty elsewhere in the territories under the authority of the Government of India, the Viceroy's flag is to be hoisted at the fore.

2. With reference to the foregoing rule (a), whenever the Viceroy and Governor-General shall be embarked on board one of His Majesty's ships, his distinguishing flag is to be hoisted at the main, and worn while the Viceroy is on board in Indian waters. It is also to be hoisted at the main during the salute by any of His Majesty's ships visited by the Viceroy.

3. With reference to rules (b) and (c), the Viceroy's flag is to be hoisted at the fore whenever any of the functionaries referred to are saluted on visiting the ship.

4. Whenever a requisition is received for the embarkation or conveyance of a Governor, Chief Commissioner, or Political Officer, the senior naval officer present may direct the Viceroy's flag to be hoisted at the fore of the ship in which he is embarked, provided that the senior officer, after consultation with and on requisition from that official, considers it for the benefit of the service about to be performed that such flag should, within the prescribed limits, be worn. Should the senior officer consider it in the circumstances undesirable to hoist the flag, he is to inform the official of his reasons, and at once report the same to the Commander-in-Chief for the information of the Admiralty.

5. In the event of such functionary being detached on a foreign mission in his official capacity outside his particular jurisdiction, a special intimation will be given by the Government of India in each case as to the flag being worn by the man-of-war in which he may be embarked ; in the absence of which the senior officer present is to exercise his discretion in consultation with the official proceeding on the mission.

101. Lord High Admiral or Admiralty.—The Lord High Admiral's flag is to be worn in ships in which the Lord High Admiral or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral are embarked.

102. Admiral of the Fleet.—The Union flag is to be worn at the main by an Admiral of the Fleet as his proper flag.

103. The following flags are to be worn by Flag Officers, except Chiefs of the Staff, as their proper flags :—

Admiral.—A white flag with the red St. George's Cross thereon.

Vice-Admiral.—A white flag with the red St. George's Cross thereon, with one red ball in the upper canton of the flag next the staff.

Rear-Admiral.—A white flag with the red St. George's Cross thereon, with one red ball in the upper canton and one in the lower canton, next the staff.

The diameter of the red ball is to be half the vertical depth of the white of the cantons next the staff, and the ball is to be in the centre of the canton.

104. Painted on Boats.—When Vice-Admirals and Rear-Admirals have their flags painted on their boats, the same distinctive balls, at least 2 inches in diameter, are to be shown on the flag.

105. Commodore, First Class.—A Commodore of the First Class, except a Chief of Staff, shall wear a white broad pendant with the red St. George's Cross thereon.

106. Commodore, Second Class.—A Commodore of the Second Class, except a Chief of Staff or Captain of the Fleet, shall wear a white broad pendant with the red St. George's Cross, with a red ball in the upper canton of the broad pendant next the staff.

107. Chief of Staff's and Captain of Fleet's Boat.—A Chief of the Staff or Captain of the Fleet shall have painted on his boat the flag of the Commander-in-Chief or Officer on whose staff he is serving.

In addition, he shall cause distinctive discs (other than the Affirmative or Negative) to be exhibited in a prominent position in his boat to indicate whether he is on board or not.

108. A King's Harbour Master, or any officer acting directly under his authority, shall, when afloat and in the execution of the duties pertaining to his office as such, fly in the bows of the vessel a Union Jack with a white border, and, in the centre of the flag, the letters K.H.M. surmounted by a crown.

109. Flags and Pendants Ashore.—Under the provisions of Order in Council of 16th February, 1903, the Admiralty may authorise an officer entitled to wear a flag, broad pendant, or pendant afloat, to fly the same flag, broad pendant, or pendant ashore, at any naval establishment or other place on shore where naval jurisdiction may, for the time being, prevail.

110. Flags and Pendants Displaced.—

By Royal Standard, &c.—A Royal Standard and the flag of the Viceroy of India, are, when indicating the presence on board of the personages entitled to hoist those flags, the Sovereign excepted, always to be worn at the main, the flag of an Admiral or the broad pendant of a Commodore, if necessary, being shifted to another mast or ship as the case may require ; except in the case provided for in clause 1 of Article 65 in regard to the flag of the Viceroy of India.

2. By Admiralty Flag.—An Admiral's flag, a Commodore's broad pendant, or the ship's pendant is to be struck when the Admiralty flag is hoisted in that ship.

3. The flags of other functionaries ordered to be hoisted in ships of war by Articles 112 to 114, and 65, clause 1, are not to displace at the masthead the flag of an Admiral of any grade, nor the broad pendant of a Commodore of either class. When, therefore, a flag or broad pendant is hoisted, the distinguishing flag of the civil, military, or air functionary is, if possible, to be hoisted at another masthead ; but if not possible, then it is to be hoisted side by side with the other, subject to the discretion conferred on the Senior Naval Officer in Article 114.

111. Senior Naval Officer.—When two or more of His Majesty's ships are present in a port or roadstead, a small white broad pendant, not exceeding five breadths, the length being twice the breadth at the head, with the St. George's Cross, is to be hoisted by the Senior Officer's ship as a distinguishing flag, in addition to the masthead pendant.

When a Commodore, junior to the Senior Officer, is also present, the Senior Officer shall wear his broad pendant at the masthead in addition to his Captain's pendant. With this exception the Senior Officer's broad pendant shall be worn at the starboard topsail yardarm.

112. Particulars of Flags.—The flags authorised by His Majesty to be displayed afloat are :—

(a) By General Officers Commanding Stations.—The Union flag, bearing in the centre, as a distinguishing mark, the Royal initials on a blue ground encircled by a garland, and surmounted by the Crown.

(b) By His Majesty's diplomatic servants.—The Union flag, with the Royal Arms in the centre thereof on a white ground encircled by a garland.

(c) By the Governors-General, Governors or High Commissioners of His Majesty's dominions, colonies and possessions abroad, and by Lieutenant-Governors or other officers administering the Government.—The Union flag, with the arms or badge of the dominion, etc., emblazoned in the centre thereof on a white ground encircled by a garland.

(d) By Consuls-General, Consuls, and Consular Agents.—The blue ensign, with the Royal Arms in the centre of the fly thereof, that is, in the centre of that part between the Union and the end of the flag.

2. No other distinguishing flag or flags are authorised to be worn afloat by any of these functionaries.

3. For the purpose of Articles 94 (2), 113 and 115, the Royal Air Force ensign is the distinguishing flag of Air Officers.

113. When to be Hoisted.—Whenever any of the functionaries particularised in Articles 99 and 112 are embarked :—

(a) In a boat for the purpose of paying visits of ceremony or on other official occasions.—The proper distinguishing flag within the respective limits prescribed by the following clause (b) may be hoisted at the bow, but when the boat belongs to one of His Majesty's ships she is to have her white ensign flying.

(b) In one of His Majesty's ships for passage :—

(i) If a General Officer commanding a Station or an Air Officer Commanding.—The proper distinguishing flag, with the approval of the Senior Naval Officer, may be hoisted at the fore and be kept flying within the General or Air Officer's command, provided he is proceeding on public military or Air Force service ;

(ii) If a Diplomatic Functionary and in charge of a Mission.—The proper distinguishing flag, with the approval of the Senior Naval Officer, may be hoisted at the fore, and be kept flying within the limits of the Mission, provided the diplomatic functionary be proceeding on the public service ;

(iii) If a Governor-General, Governor or High Commissioner, or a Lieutenant-Governor, or other Officer Administering the Government.—The proper distinguishing flag, with the approval of the Senior Naval Officer, may be hoisted at the fore, and be kept flying within the limits of his Government, or, in the case of a High Commissioner, within the limits of his Commission, provided the dominion or colonial functionary or High Commissioner be proceeding on the public service ;

- (iv) The distinguishing flag of consular authorities is to be hoisted in boats only and not in ships, except when they are being saluted.
- (c) In one of His Majesty's ships on the occasion of an official visit.—The distinguishing flags are to be hoisted respectively at the fore whenever any of His Majesty's military, air, diplomatic, dominion, colonial, or consular functionaries are receiving salutes to which they are entitled.
- (d) In British ships and boats, other than those of His Majesty, these functionaries, except consular officers as to ships, are, with the sanction of the owners or masters, authorised to fly their proper distinguishing flags on the same occasions and within the same limits, and these regulations shall be deemed a sufficient warrant to the master under the Merchant Shipping Act for so doing, but the permission to hoist such masthead flags indicative of the presence on board of any of these functionaries in no way affects or alters the character or status of the merchant ship in time of peace or in time of war, whether His Majesty is belligerent or neutral.

114. Approval of Senior Officer.—With regard to the previous approval of the Senior Officer, whenever a requisition is received for the embarkation or conveyance of any of the functionaries particularised in Articles 99 and 112, the Senior Officer present, in the absence of special orders from superior authority, will issue the necessary directions, provided that, after consultation with, and on requisition from, the official to be embarked, he considers it for the benefit of the service about to be performed that such flag should be hoisted within the authorised limits. Should the officer who has to determine the question consider it, in the circumstances, undesirable that the distinguishing flag should be hoisted, he is to inform the functionary of his reasons, and at once report the same for the information of the Admiralty.

2. When Ambassador, etc., is Embarked.—In the event of an Ambassador being embarked, or a Governor-General, Governor, High Commissioner, etc., of a dominion or colony being detached on a foreign mission in his official capacity as Governor-General, Governor or High Commissioner, special instructions will be issued in each case as to the flag which should be hoisted in a man-of-war in which he may be embarked; in the absence of instructions from the superior authority, the Senior Officer present is to exercise his discretion in consultation with the official about to embark.

115. General and/or Air Officers in Combined Operations.—In combined operations with either or both of the other Services, should the General and/or Air Officers commanding the Military and/or Air forces be embarked in a ship of war or transport, the distinguishing flag or flags authorised by Article 112 may be hoisted at the fore of such ship or transport to denote the presence of the headquarters.

117. Ships in Commission.—All His Majesty's ships of war in commission shall wear a white ensign, with the red St. George's Cross, and the Union in the upper canton. The Union Flag is to be worn at the jackstaff by all such ships when in harbour, or when under way and dressed with masthead flags. See 39 (Union Flag at jackstaff).

2. White Ensign.—On occasions of important ceremonial reviews or international naval displays on shore abroad, at which the parading of the King's Colour is not authorised, the white ensign may be carried with naval landing parties at the discretion of the Commander-in-Chief or Senior Officer present.

The landing of the white ensign in foreign territory is to be restricted to States recognised by the British Government, and is to be limited to occasions when the Head of the foreign State is present.

3. The Union Flag.—The Union flag is not to be worn by His Majesty's ships in dock and refitting. Flags and ensigns of no greater breadth than is necessary should be worn whilst refitting or in bad weather.

118. Masthead Pendant.—All His Majesty's ships in commission, when not wearing a flag or broad pendant, are to fly at the main masthead a pendant, having a St. George's Cross on a white field in the part next to the mast, with a white fly.

If necessary, in order to avoid fouling wireless telegraphy gear, a shorter pendant may be flown, provided it can easily be seen at a short distance from the ship.

123. Dominion and Colonial Ships or Vessels.—Ships or vessels of the Naval Forces of the Dominion of Canada and the Commonwealth of Australia, in accordance with the Agreement arrived at between the Imperial Government and those Dominions at the Imperial Conference, 1911, shall wear at the stern the white ensign as the symbol of the authority of the Crown, a white pendant at the masthead, and at the jack-staff the distinctive flag of the Dominion, namely, the blue ensign with the badge or emblem of the Dominion in the fly.

1A. Ships of the Royal Indian Marine wear at the stern the white ensign, a white pendant at the masthead and at the jack-staff the blue ensign with the Star of India in the fly.

2. Any ship or vessel maintained by any dominion or colony, provided and used as a vessel of war under the Colonial Defence Act of 1865, shall wear at the stern the distinctive flag of the dominion or colony, as aforesaid, and a blue pendant at the masthead.

3. Other ships or vessels belonging to, or permanently in, the service of any dominion or colony, shall wear at the stern the dis-

124. Public Offices.—Ships and vessels employed in the service of any public office in the United Kingdom shall wear a blue ensign, and a small blue flag with a Union described in a canton at the upper corner thereof next to the staff, as a jack, but in the centre of the fly of such ensign and jack, that is, in the centre of that part between the Union and the end of the flag, shall be inserted the badge of the Office to which they belong..

2. Ships or vessels employed in the service of a public office of any dominion or colony may wear a similar jack. The arms of the dominion or colony may be inserted in the fly of the jack worn by vessels belonging to any Department without a distinctive badge.

125. Vessels in Admiralty Service.—Vessels (other than ships-of-war) belonging to the Admiralty or chartered for employment in Admiralty service are to wear the blue ensign and jack, both ensign and jack having in the fly the yellow Admiralty Anchor.

126. Merchant Ships allowed to wear the Blue Ensign.—British merchant ships will be allowed to wear the blue ensign when the following conditions are fulfilled :—

- (a) The Officer commanding the ship must be an officer on the retired or emergency list of the Royal Navy or of the Royal Australian Navy, or an officer of the Royal Naval Reserve, of the Royal Australian Naval Reserve (Seagoing), of the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve, or of the Royal Naval Reserve (New Zealand Division).
- (b) The crew must include (in addition to the Commanding Officer) officers of the Royal Naval Reserve, of the Royal Australian Naval Reserve (Seagoing), of the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve, or of the Royal Naval Reserve (New Zealand Division) and men of the Royal Naval Reserve, of the Royal Australian Naval Reserve, of the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve or of the New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve, Class B, to the number specified from time to time by the Admiralty, but officers on the retired or emergency list of the Royal Navy or of the Royal Australian Navy, men belonging to the Royal Fleet Reserve, to the Royal Australian Fleet Reserve, or to the New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve, Class A. Royal Naval pensioners and men holding Naval Reserve deferred pension certificates may be included in the number specified.
- (c) Before hoisting the blue ensign, the officer commanding the ship must be provided with an Admiralty Warrant.
- (d) The fact that the Commanding Officer holds a warrant authorising him to hoist the blue ensign must be noted on the ship's articles of agreement.

2. Failure to Fulfil Conditions.—Commanding officers failing to fulfil the above conditions, unless such failure is due to death or other circumstances over which they have no control, will no longer be entitled to wear the blue ensign.

3. Subsidised Merchant Ships.—British merchant ships in receipt of Admiralty subvention will be allowed to wear the blue ensign, under Admiralty Warrant.

4. In order to ascertain that the above conditions are strictly carried out, the Captain of one of His Majesty's ships meeting a ship wearing the blue ensign may send on board an officer not below the rank of Lieutenant, at any convenient opportunity. This restriction as to the rank of the boarding officer is in no way to limit or otherwise affect the authority or the duties of naval officers either under the Merchant Shipping Acts or in time of war.

5. Applications for permission to wear the blue ensign on board British merchant ships in receipt of Admiralty subvention, should be made direct to the Admiralty by the owners ; for other merchant ships the applications should be made through the Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen.

The Board of Trade will issue regulations as to the mode of proceeding.

127. Merchant Ships.—In accordance with the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, all other ships and vessels which belong to His Majesty's subjects shall wear a red ensign free from any badge or distinctive mark, with the Union in the upper canton next the staff, except such yachts or other vessels as may have warrants from the Admiralty to display other ensigns, colours, or pendants.

2. Merchant vessels of the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, Newfoundland, the Native States of India, Cyprus, Somaliland, Western Samoa, Palestine, and Tanganyika Territory, and of the British North Borneo Company, may, by Admiralty Warrant, wear the red ensign with the badge of the dominion, state, protectorate or mandated territory in the fly, but other colonial merchant vessels shall wear the red ensign free from any badge or distinctive mark.

3. Any colonial merchant vessel, may, however, fly a distinguishing flag with the badge of the colony thereon, in addition to the red ensign, provided that such flag does not infringe the provisions of Section 73 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

128. Pilot Flag.—All ships and vessels shall use the British Union flag, with a border of white of one-fifth of the flag, as a pilot flag, in all parts of the world.

129. Improper Colours, Penalties.—With respect to the wearing of improper colours by British merchant vessels, the 73rd Section of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, provides as follows :—

“(1) The red ensign usually worn by merchant ships, without any defacement or modification whatsoever, is hereby declared to be the proper national colours for all ships and boats belonging to any British subject, except in the case of Her Majesty’s ships or boats, or in the case of any other ship or boat for the time being allowed to wear any other national colours in pursuance of a warrant from Her Majesty or from the Admiralty.

“(2) If any distinctive national colours, except such red ensign or except the Union Jack with white border, or if any colours usually worn by Her Majesty’s ships or resembling those of Her Majesty, or if the pendant usually carried by Her Majesty’s ships or any pendant resembling that pendant, are or is hoisted on board any ship or boat belonging to any British subject without warrant from Her Majesty or from the Admiralty, the master of the ship or boat, or the owner thereof, if on board the same, and every other person hoisting the colours or pendant, shall for each offence incur a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds.

“(3) Any commissioned officer on full pay in the military or naval service of Her Majesty or any officer of customs in Her Majesty’s dominions, or any British consular officer, may board any ship or boat on which any colours or pendant are hoisted contrary to this Act, and seize and take away the colours or pendant, and the colours or pendant shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

“(4) A fine under this section may be recovered with costs in the High Court in England or Ireland, or in the Court of Session in Scotland, or in any Colonial Court of Admiralty or Vice-Admiralty Court within Her Majesty’s dominions.

“(5) Any offence mentioned in this section may also be prosecuted, and the fine for it recovered summarily, provided that—

“(a) where any such offence is prosecuted summarily, the Court imposing the fine shall not impose a higher fine than one hundred pounds; and

“(b) nothing in this section shall authorise the imposition of more than one fine in respect of the same offence.”

2. Procedure.—In any case of a ship or vessel belonging to any of His Majesty’s subjects, including colonial merchant vessels, hoisting improper colours, the Captain is first to send a communication in writing to the Master of such ship, calling his attention to the above section of the Merchant Shipping Act, and is further to allow a reasonable time to elapse from the delivery of such communication, before proceeding to exercise the powers conferred upon him under those Acts.

3. Precautions.—In a home port the Captain will also, should he think it necessary, apply to superior authority for instructions ; in a foreign port he will, by communicating with the consul, or otherwise, endeavour to avoid giving offence to the local authorities.

130. National Colours, Hoisting of.—Provision is made in respect of the hoisting of proper national colours by merchant ships under the 74th Section of the same Act, as follows :—

“ (1) A ship belonging to a British subject shall hoist the proper national colours—

“ (b) on entering or leaving any foreign port, and

“ (c) if of fifty tons gross tonnage or upwards, on entering or leaving any British port.

“ (2) If default is made on board any such ship in complying with this section, the master of the ship shall for each offence be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.”

This section does not apply to a fishing boat duly entered in the Fishing Boat Register, and lettered and numbered as required by the Fourth Part of that Act.

2. Refusal to Hoist.—Should a ship or vessel belonging to any of His Majesty’s subjects, including colonial merchant vessels, refuse to show her national colours to one of His Majesty’s ships, the names of the ship, of the Master, and of the owners are to be ascertained, and one or more affidavits of the facts are to be taken on the first occasion that offers, before a consul or other competent authority, and transmitted to the Admiralty with a full report of the occurrence.
